Blue, 2 owners, BMWâ€™s F800GS is virtually unique: a 750/800 class adventure bike, that to most degrees offers the best of both worlds. Itâ€™s light, slim and perky enough to be a credible off-roader yet itâ€™s also substantial, grunty, roomy and potentially sufficiently well equipped to tackle crossing continents. Though tall and â€˜properâ€™ the 800GS is lithe, slim and light, enough to make it a doddle, at least compared to the 1200, to manhandle and manouvere, thanks to masses of steering lock, decent suspension, lightness and assured weight distribution. Derived from the F800S unit, but with a more upright block, the BM parallel twin is intoxicatingly invigorating. 85 horses might not sound like much, but its more than enough. Itâ€™s perky and fruity, has a deliciously raspy exhaust note and is responsive, progressive and yet yearns for more and more revs up to the redline. This one comes with ABS, heated grips, handguards, scottoiler and fairing protection bars. The North Westâ€™s finest family run motorcycle dealership, £6,495 p/x
