I am passionate about teaching languages and the education sector in general. I recently worked as a teacher of Spanish at the University of Bath. Before gaining this role, I spent six months working as a Spanish Language Assistant in the Language Centre at the University of Cambridge. During my studies in Spain, I gained teaching experience when I worked in the Centre Complutense for the Teaching of Spanish at the Complutense University of Madrid, where I taught Spanish to several groups of foreign students.

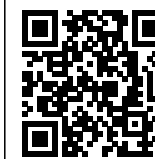

My academic education is strongly related to the subject. In 2015, I finished a master's degree in Spanish as a Second Language. Before that, I gained my BA in Spanish Language and Literature.

I have taught the Spanish language at several levels and in various contexts, and I love the possibility to make a meaningful contribution to the challenge of inspiring students and helping to guide them in their future studies and careers.

Tutoring approach:

- I cover the four skills: reading, writing, listening and speaking.
- Communicative purpose: the student is exposed to environments simulating real situations such as role play exercises.
- Grammar tips are provided during the.
