I have 2 female dragons for sale. They both have there separate Vivs, they have never been introduced together so not sure how they would react. I bought them separate.

Rango in the bottom tank will be 4 years next month. I've had her from a baby, she is amazing and well handled, she's very laid back. Rango's substrate is sand.

Rosey in top tank is a red leatherback dragon and she is 3 years, also had her from a baby. One of the pics is when I got her she was so tiny. She is more jumpier than rango but she can be handled. Rosey substrate I just use kitchen towel or newspaper, but u can change her to sand if u like.

Both dragons are fed salad every day , no iceberg lettuce. They eat crickets 3 times a week. You need to dust there salad with or crickets with vitamin d3

I'm looking for £100 each collection
