We are a blue chip alarm, CCTV and access control installation and monitoring company and we are looking for an engineer to join our team. Area: London and Kent. The role will be installing new security systems and completing regular service checks. A clean driving license is required and you will be working in a non smoking environment. Our business succeeds because we deliver great customer service on and off site so punctuality, personal appearance and presentation are important. The work is hard but rewarding and requires a calm head. You must be a good communicator, able to work in a small, close-knit team and someone who is prepared to do the extra to get the job done. Good.
