Then read on! Brief History of Drakelow Tunnels; Drakelow Tunnels are spread over 285,000 square feet. They were originally constructed for use by Rover in WWII under the Ministry of Aircraft Production's Shadow Factory Scheme; the tunnels were mainly used for machine workshops and additional storage for Rover. When World War 2 was over, the Government took over the tunnels and it was used as a regional site in case of a nuclear attack. Less than a half of the site was converted for use during the Cold War period, where new rooms and equipment were installed. The tunnels were also used to accommodate important local and national government personnel as well as the armed forces and a small amount of medical staff. In the 1980's the Government refurbished many parts of the nuclear side although this was short lived as the site was sold off in the early 1990's when the Cold War had ended. Reported hauntings and paranormal activity at Drakelow Tunnels; During the construction of Drakelow there have been reports of many gruesome deaths, reports range from roofs collapsing and crushing staff to death along with fatal human error. Ghost hunters brave enough to enter these areas have reported hauntings that are believed to be in connection with these traumatic and tragic deaths. The presence of a worker who died during its construction is still known to move objects. There have been many reports of hauntings by visitors and ghost hunters alike and the most have reported as being watched as they explore the dark eerie tunnels. What will you experience?
