I am a software development company which provides custom web and mobile development services.

My clients are established companies, agencies, individual entrepreneurs and startups who need a professional mobile or web app. Since founded in 2000 I have created a variety of online databases, eCommerce websites, collaboration portals, SaaS applications, custom business management and automation tools. The knowledge base and experience our team accumulated through these years allow us to cope with projects of any complexity.

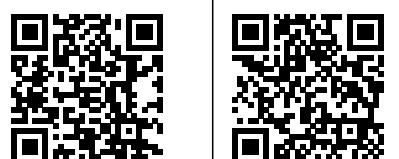

For me, every project is an opportunity to apply our expertise to develop a unique high quality software application for the client. To achieve this, I create dedicated development teams where each member is picked according to the knowledge and skills needed in the particular case. I give our customers complete control over the development process. This way, project owner gets a team of developers who work full time on his project only, respond to feedback and provide expert technical advice.

I have all IT professionals for hire -- software engineers, designers, mobile developers, QA and DevOps specialists. If you are looking for a software company to outsource development of your web project or mobile app, contact me!
