here for sale i have a bmw 316 compact e36 1.6 automatic for its age (1995) it is in wonderful exterior condition with a tiny bit of paint bubble on the rear arch (very small) it runs very well and has exceptionally low milage. it looks o of had a very good service history and receipts to prove. the previous owner spent well over £1700 on maintance including a new exhaust with cat (due to emmisions failure) new mechanics relating to the steering, coolant system, gearbox service due to it being an automatic also. the only pitful i can say about the car is that it has a click when turning the steering wheel, and a lot of parts have been replaced to rectify this, the steering pump appears fine as does the steering rack. if you do a little research this is very common on these models and isn't a fault at all just a small annoyance if you're picky) now the good news for the buyer, there is only 3 of this exact model left 2 on the road and 1 sorn (proof in pictures) so would definately be worth keeping, the only reason for sale is i took a punt at buying an auto for the other half, unfortunately she can't get insured as she is a new driver so we need to get a newer model (a pitty really as this has a great maintance record to hand) no expense has been spared on this. viewings and inspections are very welcome as we have nothing to hide and it's a genuine reason for sale. please no tyre kickers, and we are open to sensible offers and possibly a PX and cash either way for a 316ti e46 automatic (for insurance reasons) it also includes reverse parking sensors and a alpine sound system of high quality and expense comes with 2 electric keys for central locking and a normal spare key thanks for looking, feel free to contact:)
