Orange, 1 owner, Sold by ourselves 13/06/15, with wrap around hand guards, radiator guard and rim tapes. If you're looking to get your license, learn to lift either wheel or pursue some lightweight urban thrills, the 125 Duke can do it for you. Move over YZF-R125, this is the new king of the 125s. The riding position is comfortable, yet poised and cornering thanks to the big bike ergonomics but small bike weight is nimble and swift. The turning circle is good in town, but get out there and the bike will allow you to scrape pegs, knee sliders and anything else you care to trail along the floor. The front brakes are fantastic and beautifully responsive, allowing you to really feel the front forks load on mid to heavy braking, while keeping the bike perfectly stable and straight. Anyone keen to lift the rear wheel will find the four piston calliper and the centralised riding position more than up to the job. The rear shock, too, absorbs any bumps in the road well and provided decent cushioning on a range of roads tested. The North West's finest family run motorcycle dealership, £3,650 p/x
