Dear Parent / Student, My name is Michael and I've been a secondary school teacher and tutor of both Maths and Physics for 25 + years. I have taught students across the full ability range, helping students with moderate learning difficulties as well as those aiming to achieve top grades in GCSE or at A - Level. All of my advanced students have gone on to University, some to medical school and successful Oxford or Cambridge entrance. My experience as an examiner has enabled me to guide my students more effectively in preparation for GCSE and A - Level exams. Over the last few years I have developed my resources so that I can offer the same top quality tuition online to students anywhere in the UK and abroad as I can to face - to - face students. Have you considered ONLINE tuition in Maths or Physics ? You might be pleasantly surprised. The technology these days enables us to have a learning experience which is just as effective as having your own, personal, tutor in a face - to - face meeting. You might like to try a free preliminary meeting online. It's free, so you have nothing to pay, nothing to lose. It just takes 30 minutes of your time. What I do is to re - create, as closely as possible, the same learning experience as in a face - to - face meeting. With my current online students (GCSE Maths) after some initial trepidation and months of preparation, I find it's easy to develop the same working relationship with parent and student - as I do in face - to - face, something I was sceptical about - at first, but not any more. We use Skype for conversation. It's just like talking to parents and student around the same kitchen table! I can still share my qualifications, my certificates, my CRB / DBS, my references, and discuss the student's educational needs, just as I do face - to - face. We also use and share an interactive online whiteboard, just like a sheet of paper between us, and of course screen - sharing technology to bring our tuition notes to the home of the student. The student does not have to download anything to his / her computer (just Skype for free). I use a graphics tablet and stylus to write on the whiteboard and the student can write on the whiteboard too. I try to make the online learning experience as close to a face - to - face relationship as possible. It's possible to have a face - to - face meeting if you prefer. I have a car and a location where I can meet you. OR if you prefer, we can have sessions for a shorter time and you can get in touch by email or phone. The first introductory session is free. I will return your call. Please leave a short message and number and I will return your call.
