- Devising strategic marketing plans

Market Research We offer wide range of marketing research and surveys activities to our clients. Companies need research to find answers to business problems and to identify the needs of the customers. We utilise latest techniques to design, analyse and interpret surveys. Sales Training Sales people are always at the forefront of businesses and are responsible for earning bread for the company. We provide sales deployment plans and sales training programmes which can either be at client's site or at a neutral venue. These sales training and deployment can be on the basis of geographical boundaries or can be based on attributes of specialty. Leaflet Distribution We provide door to door leaflet distribution services. This marketing strategy is well utilised and recognised by many small and medium companies especially in the early stage of their life. This marketing strategy is ideal for companies which are willing to advertise their products and services in limited geographical area Market Surveys Companies need research to find answers to business problems and to identify the needs of the customers. We shall design the systems for the design, analysis, research, survey methodology and our development, executing and research. Advertising Campaigns that develop
