The Baritone is largest of the Ukulele family. This lovely instrument is made from fancy mahogany, which gives the instrument a beautiful rich tone. I bought it from Germany and it definitely lives up to the German reputation for quality. It has been my instrument of choice for years - the tuning is the same as the guitar minus the two bass strings and it stays in tune amazingly. This Uke is a delight to play - would be a great addition for a Ukulele group to add another dimension to their music. I am only selling it because I recently bought a Tenor Guitar, which has made my baritone redundant - I will be very sad to part with it, but it needs a new home where it will be played and looked after. The Uke will come with its original padded gig bag, although I am also selling the hard case for £50, which protects it perfectly - please let me know if you would like to buy.
