Black, 1 owner, Extremely clean example and has had one owner from new. Thereâ€™s no arguing that Honda has succeeded in producing what it set out to do. The CB11 is a beautiful recreation of an aircooled inline four; itâ€™s easy to handle and novice friendly and it has fantastic detailing inspired by bikes of old. Itâ€™s a beautiful ornament and I can see many style or classic-conscious buyers who maybe want something bigger, slicker or different than a Bonnie or Harley being very happy with a CB. Hondaâ€™s first aircooled multi for 20 years puts style and user-friendliness before extreme performance. The result is easy, purringly smooth and with such a consistency in its delivery you could use its power â€œcurveâ€ as a set square. It doesnâ€™t matter whether that old fashioned tacho needle is pointing at two or eight on that green dial, the CB is always utterly smooth and predictable. The riding position is completely natural and perfect roadster style â€“ Honda has clearly spent time on the ergonomics. Those wide-ish chrome bars combined with the skinny, 18-inch front wheel adds up to ultra-light, dainty even steering perfect for flicking between traffic. Out of town the CBâ€™s perfectly, comfortably adequate too, with a plush, planted ride that more than compensates for the prolonged wind blast inevitable on this kind of bike. Gentle corner carving is as easy as everything else. The steering secure, the brakes crisp and reassuring. The North Westâ€™s finest family run motorcycle dealership, £6,995 p/x
