British households are spending more on security precautions than ever before, on locks, bolts, security grills, alarms, sensors and security lights. Although security can be expensive, this investment will keep you and your family safe, boost house prices and lower insurance costs. Banham Patent Locks is a british company owned by a single family since 1926. Mr. Banham invented his first latch bolt lock in the same year. After that moment, a short time passed and he opened first shop on London's Oxford Street. He was so good and sure of his locks so that he offered £25 to anyone who could open one of his locks. Starting with those moments, Banham Locks become famous in entire United Kingdom and not only, nowadays they are the most appreciated and strongest patent locks by any professional in this field.
