Rescued from the back of a shed, this 1950s kitchen cupboard is offered for spares or rather a lot of repair! Originally this would have had a flap down work top area in the middle section, but this is missing. The cupboard has some woodworm holes in the side (second picture) and a few in the back. These sections appear to be 3-ply board, I think, so could be replaced or the holes filled. The cupboard doors and drawer seem sound. There is also a cut out in the right hand side of the cupboard - I suspect this was to accommodate a stop-cock. I am hoping someone can make use of this for the remaining features, like the vents in the lower doors, the handles and the glass upper.
