INFORMATION ABOUT TAO KUNG Tao Kung is a system of movements originating from the martial art of PGB White Crane Silat for people who have experienced health problems & older adults who wish to improve and/or maintain their health. It includes gentle exercises/warm up's, gentle forms inspired by nature & breathing movements that will improve your health, reduce anxiety & stress. Persatuan Gerak Badan (PGB) is a school of Silat , (martial art,) founded by Suhu Subur Rahardja in 1952. in Bogor , West Java , Indonesia . The White Crane (Bangau Putih) is its emblem. His son the current Grand Master Gunawan Rahardja inherited the school 1986. The school is admired for its dynamic, powerful and graceful style, with students all over the world. In 2000, Guru Gunawan Rahardja developed a series of simple movements to improve health in older adults or for the practice of adults who experience or are recovering from ill health. He named this system of movements Tao Kung, translated Tao Kung means 'motion for harmony' .The gentle movements give powerful results. practicing Tao Kung enables the body to heal, harmonize and balance in mind, body & spirit. Tao Kung is enjoyable, no strain or force is used, movements are practiced in line with each person's individual ability and scope. The movements are done slowly and gently with attention to the position of the body so that the joints are developed and the muscles are strengthened. This enables the body to improve its strength, flexibility and energy. The movements also encourage deep relaxation, harmony and balance. The movements of the body include strengthening the bones, the immune system, balancing of the bodies systems including the respiratory, nervous, hormonal, lymphatic system's.
