Far from being a polluting, inefficient monster truck, the CR-V is whiter than white. It takes up no more road space than a family saloon (it's shorter than the Honda Accord), returns fuel consumption of up to 44mpg in everyday driving, and its front end has been designed to cause minimum damage to pedestrians in an accident. It corners superbly for a 4x4, thanks to a lower centre of gravity than traditional off roaders, and feels composed and reassuring.
