Heartbreaking sale of my 15'2 gelding he's piebald heavy weight cob
I've own d him 7 years so Extremely sad sale, 18 but don't let that put you off, He's shod on front feet only, happy hacker, will go first or last, suit confident novice or mother daughter share, can be more forward going with confident rider, does hack alone but does need a littler persuasion for the first few times, doesn't do anything silly just needs pushing on at times, a bit of a plod to school as he does get bored of this, never fizzy or silly in open spaces, prefers to live out rugged as he does forget his manners when being stabled and can be a bit bargy if stabled for long periods, nothing nasty just wants to hurry to get back out, has no vices, snaffle mouthed, he would suit a nice happy hacker life, he's the sort you can leave for long periods and hop backon no problem at all, gets along with other horses very well, never nasty, brill to groom, bath, tack up, good for farrier, dentist etc does need a bit of persuading to load and can sometimes sweat up, Joe is blind one side he's had surgery 7 years ago and was blind that side some 5 years before that but it does not affect him in anyway just like so many eventing horses you see these days with one eye he has coped extremely well with it if you can't see past that then Joe is not the horse for you, he's one of the most genuine horses youl ever meet and I want the best possible forever home for him, any more info please ask, genuine enquiries only as hard enoug sale as it is. Priced to sell so no silly offers worth more than this all day long for his size and breed. Also please don't offer me insulting prices for him based on his age he has a lot of ridden years left in him I will not take instalments or part payments on him so please stop asking he's at such a price already it's a good price, will be sold at this price but there is then the option on full price if you want and keep him if he's not for you the owner brackley based retired and their 2nd horse
