This is my Wife's old scooter but as you can see from the photos, it has been standing around for years. The engine was running great when it was last started but that was about two years ago now. She has owned it since new but lost all paperwork for it in house moving about three years ago. The scooter is all there but just not complete, i.e. put back together. I was doing it up to put back on the road about five years ago and all was going smoothly, until my Wife's dad took over. He was going to replace the front forks as they were bent but then once he has taken it apart, that is basically how it stayed until advertising it on here now. So this is just for parts really unless you want it as a project. Needs a new battery but all electrics work fine and also if you were to tackle this or maybe turn it into a go kart or something like that then you would need to get a new starter motor for it, as the other one burnt out. The price is not negotiable as it is worth far more than the advertised price in parts alone. I would break it up but just haven't got the time to do this. This is a pretty rare scooter so that is.
