I have an Audi A3 2.0 TDI sport with approximately 97,200 miles for sale. reason for selling is that I want to buy a newer car and 5-door. I did full service last month, cam belt, wish bones front changed, oil and changed filters, 4 brand new Cooper tires, alignment, boost pipes, mass meter air, new battery, was on the machine and nothing pointed. a few months until the mot £ 152 road tax. It was changed in sump along with the oil. the car only has a small problem in motoway it passes the 80mph goes into limp mode. but never bothered me because the limit is 70mph, the garage says it is the valve N75 or N75 solenoid thing you can buy for around £ 50 on ebay. the car drives beautifully, impeccable engine, without leakage only
