We are only born with 2 fears, Falling and loud noises, everything else is a learned behaviour. The subconscious witnesses something it perceives as potentially dangerous to us and so causes us to have a fear against anything that could put us in that dangerous situation in the future. Performance As with any repeated task, once learned it is performed by our subconscious. (Driving, playing the piano, tennis etc.) If we concentrate on doing it for say an important performance, our conscious takes over and it is not the expert, so we falter. Pain

Pain is a signal that something needs attention. Hypnosis can be used to help alleviate pain, but only after the signal that something is wrong has been fully addressed. It's vital that it is medically checked before any other therapy. For a more comprehensive list of issues that I deal with, please see my website:
