artists to perform as advertised.

The Promoter will register an account with The Seller and may then upload their event(s) onto the website.

It is the Promoter's responsibility to ensure all event and ticket detail listed are accurate and The Seller cannot be held liable for any errors.

If the Promoter requests The Seller load his event, it is their responsibility to check the final listing for any errors. Once loaded, The Seller accept no responsibility for any errors.

The Seller will add a no booking fee to the ticket.

The amount redeemed to the Promoter is inclusive of VAT and it is the Promoters responsibly to conduct his tax affairs accordingly.

The Seller will provide the Promoter with an invoice following the event, detailing tickets sold and remittance due.

Payments will be made on the Wednesday following the event by BACS transfer or cheque (as requested by the Promoter), unless prior arrangements have been made.

It is your responsibility to enter and update your payment details and inform us which account you would like payment to be made to. The Seller takes no responsibility if any payments are made to the wrong account.

Should any overpayment be made in error by The Seller, it is the responsibility of the event organisers/directors to notify us immediately. Overpayments must be returned immediately upon notification. The event and its organisers/directors are personally liable for repaying these funds. In the instance of complaints about the event being received by The Seller, we reserve the right to withhold payment for up to 1 month, to resolve any disputes with customers (this time period may change).

The Seller will not refund tickets without the Promoter's agreement unless we cannot contact the Promoter within 1 week of the event by means listed on the Promoter's account.

You agree to include The Seller logo or our web address & telephone number on all your promotions (unless The Seller is your exclusive Box Office).

We do not recommend that you display any advertisements where you do not have prior arrangements.

If we receive any fines through promotions you have done i.e. fly posters or hand-to-hand flyering, you agree to pay them, as The Seller takes no responsibility. Whenever possible The Seller will pass on any communication received from councils to relevant parties but will not be held responsible if contact cannot be made.

If your event is cancelled or does not go ahead for whatever reason and you do not inform us in advance, you agree to pay The Seller the total amount, transactions charges and any other associated fees so that we can refund the customers in full.

The promoter is solely responsible for ensuring that the number of tickets sold for an event complies with capacity requirements/licenses

It is your responsibility to enter and update your contact details.

The promoter must not include any information on their event(s) page(s) referring to other ways of purchasing tickets to their event(s), through any means. This includes any special offers, prices, packages, or 'on the door' sales and so on that are not listed on The Seller or any other information that may decrease or negatively affect sales with The Seller.
