

We have come to a hard decision to rehome our dog. Genuine reason is we do not have enough time for him.

We have had him since he was 8 weeks old.

He has lived with very young children and other pets.

He is fully vaccinated, micro chipped and has been neutered.

He is a very loving boy with not a bad bone in his body and always gets told how handsome he is.

He is very playful and loves cuddles. We do find he's a bit boistures but this is because he's still learning and only a puppy.

He has been going training for the past 4 weeks with an ex army dog handler and she has done amazing work with him.

He walks on the lead with no pulling.

You can let him off the lead and he will run ahead but will always stop and wait for you.

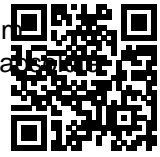

( accept if there is another dog then he will want to play with them instead of been interested in you.. this is been worked on by his trainer)

He is clicker trained and will sit and lye down on command.

He is toilet trained and sleeps in his crete at night.

As you can see alot of work has gone into him but he's been wasted with us.. living with a big family of 4 children, both parents working it's hard to walk him as much as he needs.

The new home with be vetted by my self and my partner as we don't want him getting into the wrong
