Parents judge themselves harshly because of not seeing things as a child; understanding why they react to the things they do, not knowing what to do when your child is hurting which creates a lack of confidence and self-esteem and investing financially in child related specialists without being given knowledge to continue the development in the home. The 3 biggest mistakes parents make when dealing with their child's outbursts is; Talking to their child as an adult Failing to know how to arrange specific activities within the day to release stress Not understanding how creative activities play a huge part in a child's emotional development We are going to show you tips and secrets that will calm down your child, helping them through the school week. You will discover how you are already using risk activities (calming your child down) within the home. Lots of new ideas to take and apply in your everyday life. With creativity being squeezed out of schools there has been a 50% increase in stress and anxiety within the education system. Science shows art can do incredible things for your mind and body based on a report from Gabe Bergado, 15th December 2014/arts.mic In our taster course you will be learning where to introduce activities that will release your child's stress and build their confidence with simple ideas without having to spend money.
