CHEAPEST ONE ON INTERNET LIKE FOR LIKE Volvo has launched the V60 as a sports wagon and not as a traditional estate car. The official reason is that the car manufacturer wanted to make a vehicle with a coupe-like design, strong driving characteristics and good level of practicality. The V60 certainly feels nimble especially if you're used to more traditional Volvo estate cars of the past. Thanks to the low-slung shape of the V60 there is very little body roll. Take it onto the motorways and this car feels right at home: it is assured and made for cruising at 70mph.
