Do you have a small sized classical guitar that no longer gets used often, or have the need of a micro-bass ukulele in your life, but cant afford a new one? Then why not build yourself your own custom bass ukulele? The kits I supply contain all of the hardware needed for the conversion (as pictured), a set of Aquila Thundergut strings and a quality 3 band active preamp EQ. Of course, I also supply a full set of detailed instructions, supported by many colour photographs which explain how to build one of your own.

How it works: You supply a quarter or half (recommended) size classical guitar.

Search your shed or nip down to the hardware store to pick up these tools (minimum requirement):

- * Drill, selection of wood bits (inc 25mm)
- * A padsaw or close-quarters hacksaw
- * A flat general purpose or wood file
- * A mini-file kit or fine sandpaper
- * A screwdriver with a small cross-head end
- * An old towel or rag.

â€“Soldering equipment is NOT required--

Then order a kit, put a morning or afternoon aside, and get started! If you need some advice, or encouragement - send an email to the address on the instructions for all the help you need. Order on line - google search Buzzards Field Ukuleles, or get in touch with your email and I'll send the necessary
