Here i am selling my 2008 Quadzilla 300 XLC. I purchased this around about a month and a half ago. It is fully road legal and i have the logbook and the service history aswell as the owners manual. It has done around 3100 miles which is pretty good seeing as it is 9 years old. I originally purchased this as a small project as i was going to spray all the panels and get a new sticker set however due to getting a new job i dont have the time to do this anymore. I have took all of the stickers off as they didnt look too good, however the panels will need abit of a touch up as they have faded apart from where the stickers were. the back left wheel does have a nail in it. Before i purchased the bike i did do a check and noticed that it has been in there since before the last MOT. Seems to be staying up but will need replacing at some point. The MOT on it runs out in June, i am unsure of the date. The last MOT had 2 advisories. The first one was the nail in the tyre, and the second one was the number plate being broken. I have replaced it with a new number plate since i have had it. The bike itself is a really nice ride, i have only rode it about 4 times since i have owned it due to being too busy but it never let me down. I do have a disc lock which i will include along with a chain that i purchased for £40 but never.
