Amongst the various options of company incorporation in Singapore, Singapore subsidiary company can unarguably be said the most preferred and the most favoured incorporation type for foreign entities. This is because of the distinct flexibility it offers, including the ability to register Singapore Company with the permission to have the foreign company owning 100% of the shares while keeping its assets separate.

This means that a Singapore subsidiary company can entirely be owned by foreign company and is considered a separate legal entity from the foreign company, thereby the liabilities are only limited to share capital rather than the entire assets of the respective parent foreign company.
