Whether you are in process of incorporating company in Singapore or you have registered a Singapore company, one of the key requirements for all companies incorporated in Singapore is to have a company secretary who must be a resident of Singapore. Company secretary in Singapore is the primary person or officer responsible for administrative and reporting functions mandated by law. It is therefore the job of company secretary to ensure that the Singapore company he is responsible for meets all the regulatory obligations.

As per law, every Singapore company has to appoint company secretary within 6 month of its incorporation.

As the company secretary is such a key position in a company, the following are 5 reasons why you need to appoint company secretary in Singapore. These reasons are important for companies and individuals who want to incorporate company in Singapore.
