Healing and health - is this a dream in our day and age?

Illness - a word that is widely used today. But why? After all, health is a completely natural condition.

More and more people search for a solution from holistic medicine. On this quest, many people rediscover a completely natural path. The ancient civilizations of humanity spoke of the existence of a higher power that can help and heal. Bruno Gröning (1906-1959) called this power "Heilstrom" or healing force. Among other things, he taught how one can absorb this natural healing power. Many people have received their health back in this way, including people affected by ailments considered incurable. The healings are occurring today just as they did back then which a multitude of medically documented healing reports show. Many individuals from health care professions, among them many physicians, have joined together in the Medical Scientific Group. They have taken on the task of examining and documenting the healings that have occurred.
