I signed up for White-collar boxing (a form of boxing in which men and women in white-collar professions train for 8 weeks to fight at special events. Most have had no prior boxing experience.) I'm fighting on the 10th of March at Bowlers Manchester in a charity event.

My chosen charity is SMA a description about the charity:

The Ally Cadence Trust provides emotional and financial support to children affected by Spinal Muscular Atrophy Type 1, the leading genetic killer of under 2's with an average life expectancy of just 8 months. Children with SMA have very limited movement and may have breathing difficulties.

Charity Registration No. 1133272

My story

I'm doing the white collar boxing event 10th of March for charity (I know I must be mad lol me fight must be crazy or must just wanna get my arse whooped lol but seriously it's for a good cause)

The reason I've picked the charity that I have is SMA has taken two babies from family members off my way to soon but Heaven has gained two beautiful angels so I'm doing it in memory of them.

If you know me you will know I'm not the fittest of people and have health problems of my own so I'm challenging myself by taking part in the event (and have been told I'm daft for doing so) and hopefully I'll raise some money for this worthy charity and shift some of my unwanted timber which is a
