IT Support / Internet Security/ Web Content Filtering

Setup your network to control what the computers in your home or business are allowed to access on the internet. This allows you to filter entire categories of websites such as "gambling" or "adult content" and block them. This means that you have complete control over the type of information that can be accessed on the internet by all devices on your network.

Content filtering websites that network devices can access (e.g. HTTPS) protect work productivity and prevent access to inappropriate or embarrassing working hours. Protect children from accessing harmful information on the Internet.

Blocking/filtering can be selective for certain computers, users or groups too so that, for example, managers can have less filtering imposed than other users and time schedules can apply content filtering for specific time periods only (the facilities and granularity of this depends on the specific model of router selected).
